GRADE 6 weekly newsletter 17

Announcements and News from Miss Trenkamp

Next week, the students will be wrapping up some units as they head into Christmas break! In religion, the students will plan their next Mass and review the season of Christmas. In reading, the students will read their script and put on their short play! In social studies the students will finish their unit on Ancient Greece with a review and test. In math, the students will complete the first part of chapter 5 by learning about integers and absolute value. In writing, the students will continue working on their International Day reports.

As we go through the process of writing the International Day reports, if you have any questions please let me know. The students have writing time about once a week to write their paragraphs on each topic. The students will receive credit toward both writing and social studies for this project.

With all students being a part of the Christmas Musical, all students received information previously on specific details of the performance. If you need another copy of this information please let me know. Students do receive credit toward a large part of their religion grade for second quarter with this participation.

December 16th is our last day before break and a free dress day! If students would like they are able to wear pajamas to school, but slippers are not allowed. If students do not wish to wear pajamas, they are still able to participate in the free dress.

This will be a busy last week, but I am confident the students will end strong and enjoy the holiday festivities that come with this time of year! If you have any questions please let me know.

Blessings,

Jordan Trenkamp

What did we do last week?

This week, the students learned about the Creation Story and Adam's roles. In math, the students concluded their unit on multiplying and dividing fractions. In social studies, the students continued learning about Ancient Greece by looking at the Hippocratic Oath and their culture. In science, the students continued learning about the relative age of fossils and the law of superposition. In reading, the students began a short unit on the genre of drama by writing a short play!
