

Announcements and News from Miss Trenkamp

Next week, the students will be focusing on the Ten Commandments, and how to apply them to their own lives in religion. In math, the students will work on graphing inequalities. In social studies, the students will begin a mini-unit on the Renaissance. In science, the students will begin their next unit on weathering and erosion. In reading, the students will continue to put clues together in Westing Game.

As third quarter comes to a close, I will provide the students with one last list of anything that needs accomplished prior to the end of the quarter. If students need help with anything or need copies of something please have them let me know. The last day for students to turn in any work for quarter three is March 24th. The students will have an opportunity to see how they did with their third quarter goals and set one last goal going into the last quarter. This year certainly has flown by!

As the students get busy with sports and extracurriculars it is easy for to-do lists to become overwhelming. I am encouraging students in classroom discussions to make a list of what needs accomplished and prioritize some time each evening to school, extracurriculars, etc. This way, all is being accomplished with some balance. I understand this is easier said than done but over time the students will find their own balance.

Throughout the year, I love to support the students outside of the classroom as well. If the students happen to have a home event for an extra curricular, I would love to attend. Please email me possible dates and locations as they come up!

Blessings,

Jordan Trenkamp

What did we do last week?

This week in religion, students concluded their study of Moses' life prior to Passover by creating a timeline of major events in his life. In math, students worked on graphing functions. In social studies, students finished their unit on Ancient Egypt by creating their own papyrus. In science, the students concluded their unit on the rock cycle. In reading, the students continued to unravel clues to the Westing Game.
