

Announcements and News from Miss Trenkamp

Next week, the students will focus on the SS lessons and vocabulary unit that we would have focused on if we had fewer snow days this week. With this being said, the vocab quiz originally scheduled for 2/24, has been rescheduled for 3/3. In religion, the students will begin learning about Moses and the plagues. In science, the students will move on to the next unit where they will learn about the rock cycle. In social studies, the students will learn about the religion, math, writing system, and trade that took place in Ancient Egypt. In reading, the students will present their book reports and spend their final week of biographies looking at the lives of the Saints. In math, the students will begin solving equations. In writing, the students will begin a narrative essay (see assignment details on google classroom).

While the students were only together a short while this week, they all showed a desire to improve themselves both academically and socially. Many students are really working hard to meet their third quarter goal which is amazing to see! I will continue working with them to live out the classroom expectations both inside and outside the classroom.

Throughout the year, I love to support the students outside of the classroom as well. If the students happen to have a home event for an extra curricular, I would love to attend. Please email me possible dates and locations as they come up!

Blessings,

Jordan Trenkamp

What did we do last week?

What a short week! In religion, the students reviewed the season of Lent. In math, the students reviewed the distributive property and factoring. In science, the students wrapped up their models of seafloor spreading. In reading, the students continued learning from the lives of others through biographies. In social studies, the students began learning about the culture and geography of Ancient Egypt. In writing, the students reviewed types of sentences and where to place commas.
